Proud Rancher, Precious Bundle (Babies and Brides) By Donna Alward

After a hard day's ranching, Wyatt Black wants to kick back with a cold beer. But when he steps onto his porch, he has unexpected company—his tiny abandoned niece!

Against her better judgment, Wyatt's neighbor Elli Marchuk agrees to help him for a few days.

Elli soon falls in love with baby Darcy, but it's the child's grouchy, gorgeous protector who's got her head over heels....

Review

"Wyatt is one of my favorite types of heroes... He's strong, he's capable, and he's scared out of his mind. I wanted to take this guy home to meet my Mom." Wendy the Super Librarian

From the Author

Dear Reader,

As a writer, I'm often asked, "Why romance?" It's an easy question for me to answer. Romance is about hope. Not just a happily-ever-after, but the hope that there is someone out there to love us, and accept us, and face the ups and downs with us. It's the hope that ever after we've faced challenges life can be good again. Not just good - even better than ever before.

Hope. It is, I think, the most optimistic word in the English language.

If anyone is in need of hope, I think it is Elli. Life has dealt her a rough hand, and she's taken some time away to regroup. Wyatt, too, hasn't had it easy. And when they first meet they don't exactly hit it off. But then something happens. Maybe it's a miracle. Because somehow a tiny baby enters the picture and she changes everything. Baby Darcy might bring a whole lot of trouble, but she also brings something to Wyatt and Elli that is desperately needed: hope.

Why romance? Because in my heart I believe in love, and healing, and happiness. I wish that for you, too.

Happy reading!

Donna

From the Inside Flap

Of all the mishaps that had happened today - stubborn cattle, broken gates, his quad running out of gas - Wyatt Black definitely hadn't seen this one coming.

His boots scuffed in the dust leading to the sagging porch; his gaze riveted on the oddly shaped lump next to his front door. It was rounded and...pink. Pink? After a pause, he quickened his steps. A sound came from the bundle - a small squeaking sound.

Three steps later his heart pounded as his eyes confirmed his initial assessment. It was, indeed, a baby seat. For a few brief moments he'd nearly convinced himself he was seeing things. But there was no mistaking the pink canopy. Two steps away from the seat he could see a tiny white chubby hand, the fingers curled in, delicate pink fingernails tipping the tiny digits.

And then there she was. A tiny mite of a thing, eyes closed and lips sucking gently in and out with her breath as her hands moved restlessly. A hint of dark fuzz peeked out from beneath a stretchy pink hat, and a blanket patterned with white and pink teddy bears covered all of her but her hands. A baby. And beside her a navy and white cloth bag, as if announcing she was staying for a while.
